CONTRACTING ABROAD

A Discussion of Issues and Challenges

Facing Contractors Doing Business with Non-U.S. Governments

More and more, the U.S. contracting community is looking to foreign markets. Because contractors hope for sales abroad, attorneys and procurement professionals are learning as much as they can about new challenges -- and lessons -- in foreign markets. Please join us, therefore, for this free colloquium, hosted by the Board of Contract Appeals Bar Association (BCABA) and founded on George Washington University Law School's new course in Foreign Government Contracting, for briefings on the latest developments in export controls, Foreign Military Sales (FMS), the new European Union (EU) procurement directives, anti-corruption and the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA), offsets, and recent developments in US trade talks including the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership (TTIP) and the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) -- all key topics in emerging foreign markets.
